

Anu Korsi, soprano

Anu Korsi is one of Finland's foremost international singers, a coloratura soprano with a strong reputation on the world's concert and opera scenes. She is praised for her perfect musicianship, technical skills, expressive interpretations and vast repertoire that ranges from renaissance music to the most advanced contemporary scores. By commissioning and premiering new works for her voice type, she has helped to widen and enlarge its repertoire for the last 30 years, whilst also singing bel canto and presenting forgotten coloratura masterworks for today's public. In 2020, she was awarded the Madetoja prize by Finnish composer's society and was also a nominee for the Nordic Council's Music Prize. In 2021, she received the prestigious Erik Bergman Prize for her special achievements in performing and commissioning new vocal repertoire internationally.

In the season 2025/26, she will be giving concerts together with the Gürzenich Orchestra Cologne, the Dresdner Philharmonie, the Finnish Radio Symphony Orchestra, the Ensemble Intercontemporain and will premiere the new opera Medusa by Iain Bell in the staging of Lydia Steier at La Monnaie / De Munt Brussels.

Anu Korsi made her debut as an opera singer in 1991 in Ligeti's Aventures & Nouvelles Aventures at the Helsinki Festival. Internationally, she appeared at the Frankfurt Opera in 1993 as Olympia (Hoffmann's Tales). Her 70 opera roles contain several critically acclaimed performances of Zerbinetta, Lulu, Gilda, Norina, Queen of the Night and Mother-in-Law in Kaija Saariaho's Innocence in 2021. She sang the huge coloratura role of Catherine in the Finnish premiere of Giacomo Meyerbeer's L'Étoile du Nord. Recently, she also performed roles such as Salome, Nannetta, Susanna, Micaela, Rosalinde and Tiresias (Poulenc). John Zorn's Machine de L'Être at the New York City Opera brought her the attribute "Pyrotechnic Grace". Among important title roles she has performed James Dillon's Philomela (Casa da Música Porto), Peter Eötvös' Lady Sarashina (Polish National Opera) and Heinz Holliger's Schneewittchen (Theater Basel).

George Benjamin dedicated the soprano role in his opera Into the Little Hill especially to Anu. Since the premiere in Paris 2006, she has performed this work in Europe and the USA already 50 times, and most recently at the Elbphilharmonie Hamburg and Wigmore Hall London in 2019. Eva's role in Karlheinz Stockhausen's opera Donnerstag from Licht at the Theater Basel was another critically acclaimed performance. Anu is the only singer ever to have performed all of Eva's massive role in this 6-hour opera. She has appeared at the Semperoper Dresden, Stuttgart State Opera, Berliner Festspiele, Wiener Festwochen, Salzburg and Lucerne Festivals, Opéra National de Paris and Lyon, Teatro La Scala Milan, Finnish National Opera and Lincoln Center Festival NYC i.a.. She premiered large works including Kaija Saariaho's Saarikoski (2013-2020) and Leino Songs (2000-2007), Jonathan Harvey's White as Jasmine (2000), Esa-Pekka Salonen's Floof (1988) and Wing on Wing (2004) and Unsuk Chin's Cantatrix Sopranica (2005).
